This is a love story between two outcasts of society in the early west. Tommy Sanchez, the half-breed son of Sitting Bull and Sarah Hansen, who was captured by the Sioux and forced to marry Crazy Horse, the war chief of the Sioux. Sanchez was attempting to make his way in white society until one fateful day his world turned upside down and he was pursued from town to town by a vengeful sheriff. Upon the death of Crazy Horse, Sarah Hansen had to return to her white culture, to support her two children while handling the stigma of being a white squaw. Sarah and Tommy overcome many obstacles until they meet in the beautiful Santa Ynez Valley.
