Excerpt from The Merrimack Valley: Illusrtated The well-directed mortal who seeks in central or Northern New England a summering locality wherein sanitary, restful and recreative qualities of the highest type can be assured, is hardly in danger, be he native stranger, of making a mistake in the selection of a situation into the make-up of which all these elements enter; for such abound on every hand in all sections of this favored region. Whether one seeks vacation pleasures along the lines where ocean waters fall upon grandest shores, and these unite to present magnificent scenic attractions; sojourns among lofty and rugged mountains, as wild and primitive in all their features as when fresh from the hand of the Creator; communes with Nature in the lake and forest regions remote from the usual haunts of men; or indulges in protracted dolce far niente in rural and farming sections, or amid the charming river and inland scenes such as are found in perfection in this morsel of the continent, - all the same the results of fullest gratification and...
